JAIL DELIVERY IS FRUSTRATED

Burglar Had Sawed His Way to Liberty and Was Ready for Murderous Attack.

SHERIFF HAD LUCKY ESCAPE

Printer Turned Out, Came Back Out of Gratitude, and Gives Alarm—Planned Murder.

The honor of a poor tramp printer who was released today from the county jail after being arrested for intoxication and a feeling of gratitude for the man who befriended him prevented a jail delivery at the Rush county jail today and possibly prevented a murder or murderous attack upon Sheriff King and his wife.

Last Monday, John Campbell, a printer employed on the Democrat here was arrested for drunk. Another printer who was released yesterday after serving sentence on a similar charge, went to Mayor Cowing this morning and entreated with him to let Campbell go, saying the two would leave the city together. Cowing conferred with King and they agreed to let the fellows go. Once outside the city limits Campbell turned to his friend saying: "There is going to be h— in this town tonight." He then confided to his pal that Joe Zearinger, who is in jail waiting trial on a charge of burglary, had told him he intended to break jail either tonight or in the morning.

To his friend he then gave the story as Zearinger had unbosomed himself while the two were alone in jail. He said that he had saws in his possession and had already sawed two bars and the piece of iron holding a heavy lock in place at the jail. Everything was in readiness for a delivery and but a moment's work remained for him to break his way to freedom and liberty. Zearinger told Campbell that he intended to start the water running in the bath tub when the sheriff came to deliver his evening meal tonight. At that time he would have been out of the large cage and in the corridor, but out of view of the sheriff. When the officer would go to the back part of the corridor Zearinger intended to quietly slip out the door and down into the cellar way near the entrance. His way to liberty would be then practically assured. Campbell said that Zearinger told him if the sheriff or his wife frustrated his plans once he was out he intended to lay them low with a heavy piece of iron he had in his possession.

After the printers had talked over the matter they decided to return to Rushville and apprise Sheriff King of the desperate man's purpose and the progress he had made towards sawing the bars. To say that Sheriff King was a happy man to receive this information is putting it lightly. Without losing a moment he rushed into the jail, ordered Zearinger out of his cell and put him in another. He found the bars sawed as the printer described and the hasp on the lock of the cell door ready to be snapped off with the slightest force.

The officer confronted the prisoner with the facts and asked him for the saws. Like a whipped cur he produced them from their hiding place under the bath tub. Sheriff King had a large revolver in his possession and dealt with the desperate man in a cautious manner. There were three pieces of the saw and one part had a handle.

It is thought that Edna Trainor, the alleged sweetheart of the prisoner, who has been around here for several weeks, furnished the saws for Zearinger, but this the fellow denies.

His trial is set for next Monday and a penitentiary sentence stared him in the face. The fellow has declared all along he intended to get away from here. It will be remembered he escaped once, together with his accomplice and was afterwards caught at Muscatine, Iowa. He will now be kept under close and constant surveillance until he is delivered at the prison. He is under indictment for robbing the Frank Wilson clothing store. Sheriff King rewarded the printers liberally who apprised him of the criminal's purpose to escape.

LATER.

Zearinger made a statement before Sheriff King, Prosecutor Newbold and a stenographer at 4:30 o'clock, disclosing the name of the party who furnished the saws. They were given to him in a book and the guilty person is said to be a young woman who is a resident of Rushville.

COMMISSION TO KEEP CLOSE WATCH

State Officials Expect to See That Railroad Employees do Not Work Overtime.

DETECTIVES MAY BE HIRED

Railroads have been notified by the railroad commission that any violation of prescribed hours of labor for employees will be strictly noted. If necessary detectives will be employed to secure evidence of excessive work on the part of train men and telegraphers. No doubt the commission and the road could make satisfactory agreement in case employees perfectly able and willing, desire to work overtime for the sake of earning an honest penny. Such desire is entirely reasonable and should be permitted by a fair understanding of facts and situations.

W. R. C. DISTRICT OFFICERS

Include Several Rushville Ladies Who Attended Convention.

At the W. R. C. Sixth district convention at Connersville this week the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Yaryan, Liberty; senior vice-president, Mrs. J. Mull, Rushville; junior vice-president, Mrs. Brown; conductor, Mary Gregg; treasurer, Marion White, Greensburg; secretary, Catherine Williams, Shelbyville.

THINK THAT HE WAS HORSE THIEF

Stranger in Accident Near Orange, Hurries Away and Leaves Damaged Buggy Behind.

LEFT IT THERE THREE WEEKS

About three weeks ago a stranger driving near Moscow had a runaway and his buggy was partially demolished. He pulled the rig into a field and left with the horse and since has never returned. The buggy was a new one and was not damaged beyond repair.

Since the mysterious party never returned to claim the outfit it is thought by citizens of Orange that the fellow might be a thief making away with the rig.

NOVEL PLAN TO GET A LIBRARY

Pupils of Havens School Will Sing "Any Rags, Any Bottles, Any Bones Today."

IT WILL BE EASY PICKING

Children to Gather Junk and Create Fund for Buying Books For the School.

The Havens school in West Third street has hit upon a novel plan of increasing the "volume" of their library. Next Tuesday has been set aside by the school teachers as a day for creating a fund and means employed afford an opportunity for every child to contribute their mite, no matter how poor they may be. In this respect the plan is most commendable for the pain usually experienced in the hearts of the little ones unable to contribute at such times, will be turned into gladness for there is not a child but what can participate in raising the money.

It is planned to have all of them bring old rags, iron, pieces of brass, old rubber shoes and boots and other articles usually bought by the junk man. The heap will then be turned into money and the same applied to the fund for buying books.

The public is invited to make donations and a phone call to the Havens building anytime Tuesday or Wednesday will bring a boy from the school to get anything in the junk line one may feel disposed to give. It is a worthy cause and the citizens of Rushville should not hesitate to assist in the scheme. Miss Nina Ford is the principal at the Havens school.

WHITTON DAMAGE SUIT IS VENUED

Workman Suing for the Loss of Arm at the Innis-Pearce & Co. Factory.

ASKS DAMAGES OF $15,000

A case in which John R. Whitton, aged 52 years, is asking $15,000 damages for the loss of his right arm reached the Shelby circuit court Friday on a change of venue from Rush county, says the Shelbyville News. The arm was lost July 17, 1907, in a furniture factory at Rushville, owned by Innis-Pearce & Co., and the company is made the defendant in the suit.

Whitton, who was employed to keep clean the rooms and machinery in the factory, was busy on the date mentioned cleaning a "frizzer" or "shaper." He didn't know the operator had left it running, and as it was not properly protected by guards his right arm was caught in the shaper and mangled and lacerated so that it had to be amputated at a point four inches below the elbow.

DUPED SIXTY TO GET SHOW DOWN

Union Book and Publishing Company Writes That All is Well With Them.

AGENTS WERE BLACK SHEEP

Company Will Pay Board Bill Left Unpaid and Fulfill Contracts Made by Solicitors.

The Union Book and Publishing company has written that they mean to carry out the contract their agents made in Rushville recently, when sixty or more who put up fifty cents were of the opinion that they had been duped. An attractive contract was made along with the subscription for a set of books styled "America, Her Grandeur and Her Beauty," prizes be offered in addition to the books.

The agents came here and departed between two days in a rather suspicious manner leaving a board bill unpaid at the Main Street house.

The Daily Republican is in receipt of a letter from the publishers saying they regret very much the action of their agents here. They say in part:

"In the employment of solicitors, who as stated above work on purely commission basis and consequently as a usual thing are not men of the very highest order, this company governs itself accordingly and uses all due care and caution. Notwithstanding this fact, however, it is reasonable to assume that from time to time black sheep, or dishonest solicitors, will creep in, as they do, and by some act wholly beyond our control, and of a personal nature, or some misrepresentation, cause misunderstanding and suspicion to arise. In the event of such occurrence, however, this company acts in the matter as is found proper promptly and this company will not tolerate on the part of anyone in its employ wrong doing of any nature."

The company writes further saying they intend to pay the board bill contracted here by their solicitors and left unpaid. In all probability the firm is a responsible and legitimate one.

STRAW CAR CAUGHT ON FIRE

Loaded at Griffins and Found Burning in Connersville.

The fire department was called to the C. H. & D. depot about half past two Friday afternoon, to put out a fire that had caught in a box car loaded with baled straw, says the Connersville News. The straw had been loaded at Griffins station, west of this city, and was bound for the paper mills at Eaton, Ohio. Several holes were cut in the roof of the car, and the fire was put out without much loss. The blaze was supposed to have started from a cinder.

FIRST WORK OF THE CAMPAIGN IS ON

Particular Task Confronts County Clerk Posey and It is a Strenuous One.

REQUIRES CARE AND LABOR.

The county clerk's office is now preparing for the coming election and the work is by no means light. All the candidates must be certified to this office not more than sixty days or less than twenty days before the day of the election.

The first duty of the clerk is to prepare the notice of election, which is then printed and given to the sheriff, who is required to post one of them at every voting precinct in the county and deliver one to each township trustee.

The work of preparing the ballots for the printer is a trying ordeal as the names must be correctly spelled and be absolutely correct in every particular.

HE KNEW BRYAN IN HIS BOYHOOD

Republican Speaker Last Night Came From Same Part of the State as the Commoner (?)

GREW UP A DEMOCRAT TOO

But After Going to Congress he "Reformed" and Joined the Grand Old Party.

Hon Owen Scott, former Democratic congressman from Decatur, Illinois, pleased a large and appreciative audience at the Republican headquarters in the K. of P. building last night. He dwelt at length upon Mr. Bryan, whom the congressman has known since boyhood. Mr. Scott referred to the inconsistencies of the Democratic nominee, how he had had a leading issue in each campaign and now they were all buried. And then he asked, "How can a thinking voter support such a man?" He touched for a short time upon the right which every American citizen has to vote. Mr. Scott held that the voter did not look upon this right with as much reverence as he should. He spoke for a few moments upon the morals of the country. The people were demanding more from their candidates. They wanted to know how their representatives stood upon matters in regard to the public welfare.

Not many years ago a public man could do as he pleased and vote as he pleased, but times have changed and demands of the people must be heeded. In speaking of the trusts, he said that the Anti-Sherman trust law had been made and passed by a Republican congress, had been signed by a Republican president and was neglected by a Democratic president.

In referring to Mr. Bryan later in his speech, he said that the only piece of statesmanship which he had ever accomplished was his service upon the Ways and Means committee that formed the Gorman-Wilson tariff bill, which was largely responsible for the panic of '93.

Mr. Scott closed his speech by paying a fitting tribute to Mr. Taft and Mr. Watson. He spoke of Mr. Taft's past experience in statesmanship and his ability to take up and carry on the Roosevelt policies. He expressed his admiration of Mr. Watson for coming out and taking a bold stand upon moral issues. His praise of Mr. Watson as a statesman and also as a private citizen brought forth resounding cheers from the audience.

MR. TAFT IS IN KANSAS TODAY

Speech-Making Itinerary to Wind Up In Topeka Tonight.

FINE RECEPTION AT DENVER

In the Auditorium in Which Bryan Was Nominated Last July, the Republican Nominee Addressed a Tremendous Throng, Setting Forth the Reasons and Arguments Why the Nebraskan Should Not Be Elected—From Denver Mr. Taft Started on All-Night Ride for Kansas.

Denver, Col., Oct. 3.—In the same building—the Denver Auditorium—in which William J. Bryan was nominated for the presidency last July, William H. Taft last night addressed a tremendous throng, setting forth reasons and arguments why the Nebraskan should not be elected.

Mr. Taft's entry into Denver was under inspiring political conditions. His stay in the city was but for three hours, and every preliminary to the big street parade and its attending spectacular features had been carefully arranged so that when the Taft special pulled into the union station the town had on a particularly bright red glare. The streets were profusely illuminated and had not been so densely populated since the Democratic convention departed.

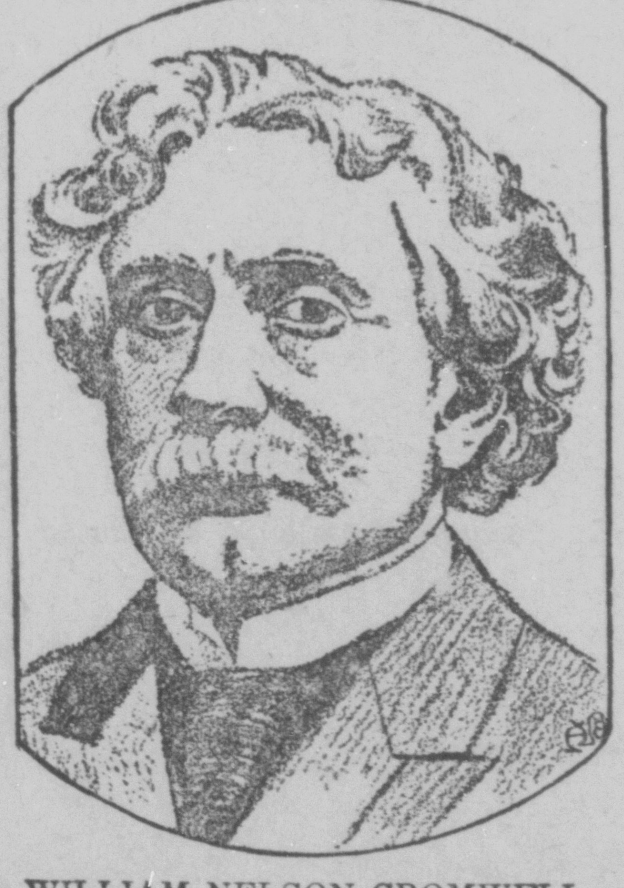

The candidate was at once made a part of the festivities. In an automobile he was given the place of honor in the parade and bowed his acknowledgements to shouts and plaudits along the line of march, which included the principal business streets and ending at the splendid Auditorium, whose entire seating capacity had been thrown open.

Mr. Taft delivered the principal speech of the evening. His subjects ranged widely over the various issues of the campaign. After the meeting Mr. Taft immediately took up his journey eastward, choosing an all-night run to be able to keep an engagement at Dodge City, Kan., this morning and carry out an itinerary of speech-making through that state today, reaching Topeka tonight.

SHELDON AND CROMWELL

Democrats Turn the Limelight in Their Direction.

New York, Oct. 3.—Following the attack of National Chairman Mack on the corporation affiliations of George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the Republican national committee, it is learned that the Democratic national committee is preparing to assail the corporation connections of William Nelson Cromwell, member of the advisory committee of the Republican national committee. Other members of the Republican advisory committee, it is said, are also being investigated, and representatives of the Democratic committee are carefully inquiring into the financial records of the Republican committeemen. For several days the corporation records of Mr. Cromwell have been under quiet investigation, but whether the representatives of the Democratic committee have learned anything of Mr. Cromwell's financial operations other than the companies with which he is identified, has not been made known. Chairman Mack will leave for the West tonight, and it is not unlikely that there may be some developments with regard to the planned attack on Mr. Cromwell.

Attacks by the Democrats on the corporation affiliations of Mr. Sheldon began when Norman E. Mack, Democratic national chairman, issued the following:

"The trust and corporation affiliations of George R. Sheldon, treasurer of the national Republican committee for the last ten years, make interesting reading. I wish to recall in this connection that because of these various associations former Governor Odell refused to permit his party leaders to put Mr. Sheldon in nomination for the lieutenant governorship of New York. But while the Republican party has refused to put Mr. Sheldon's name for a public office, it has for the identical reason selected him for its campaign fund collector. This cannot be denied. Most of the corporations with which Mr. Sheldon is identified are capitalized for millions. Yet Mr. Roosevelt has defended him and his resignation has not been demanded, while Mr. Du Pont was invited to step down and out. Mr. Du Pont was only identified with one trust, while Mr. Sheldon is at the present time intimately identified with seventeen prominent financial concerns. Mr. Sheldon is treasurer and director of the North American company, capitalized for thirty millions, and but a few years back he was prominently identified with the 'whisky trust.'"

CAUSED A FLUTTER OF EXCITEMENT

Republican Headquarters Surprised by President's Emissary.

New York, Oct. 3.—When it was reported here that Secretary of State Elihu Root had visited Republican national headquarters last Wednesday and made inquiries regarding the working of the various departments under the national committee, a flutter of excitement was caused in political circles. A report went forth that Secretary Root had been sent by President Roosevelt because the president was not satisfied with the manner in which the campaign was being conducted.

GEORGE R. SHELDON.

Secretary Root was credited with having returned to Washington and there expressed the conclusion that National Treasurer Sheldon was to blame for the lagging in the campaign, he having left to Chairman Hitchcock much of the business that should have been disposed of by the treasurer's department. Treasurer Sheldon was not at his office today, but his assistant, George Terry, said that the treasurer's department had no reply to make to the reports. No confirmation of the reported purpose of Secretary Root's visit to national headquarters could be obtained.

TALKS TO HOME FOLKS

Mr. Bryan Thinks He Has Had Plenty of Experience.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 3.—Speaking last night before the German Bryan club of Lincoln, William Jennings Bryan answered the criticisms which had been made of him by Governor Hughes and other Republican leaders, that his experience in public life was not sufficient to qualify him for the presidency. Mr. Bryan asked his audience:

"Why this new-born zeal for experience?" He cited Abraham Lincoln, General Grant, James G. Blaine, Benjamin Harrison and Mr. McKinley as having had no particular public experience previously to their nominations, and as for Governor Hughes, whom he said had laid special emphasis upon Mr. Taft's experience and qualifications, he declared he had but two years' experience as governor of the state of New York, and yet he thought three months ago that he was as well "qualified for the presidency as Mr. Taft."

The Democratic candidate maintained that if he measured up to Governor Hughes in experience in public life, "the governor ought not to urge my inexperience as an objection to me."

Taking up the charge that he may not make wise appointments if elected, Mr. Bryan insisted that the argument should not be made by a Republican, because he said for the next two years at least the senate would be Republican and would pass upon all important appointments, thus sharing in the responsibility of any objectionable men becoming officials. "I am satisfied," he said, "that I can find such excellent men that even a Republican senate will not dare to reject them."

President Removes Offenders.

Washington, Oct. 3.—As a result of a report made by the civil service commission, the president has removed Lincoln Avery, collector of the port at Port Huron, Mich., and also directed the removal of Charles H. Dailey, special agent of the treasury at that place. The civil service commission found proof of the charge of serious violations of the rules and regulations in regard to campaign assessments and which also involved on the part of Special Agent Dailey, "pernicious activity in politics."

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Oct. 3.—WHILE THE fact that gambling had been started anew at French Lick, Governor Hanly had nothing to say for publication. Attorney General Bingham also refused to discuss the case, although he indicated that word of renewed gambling was new to him. Last spring the gamblers were run out of French Lick by a delegation from the state house acting under the direction of the attorney general. Several Indianapolis men who were sworn in as deputies under a constable there, moved on the gambling casinos. It seemed, however, that the raid had been tipped off, as the gamblers had flown and the places were closed when the state house delegation arrived. In the state house party were Charles V. McAdams, railroad commissioner, and Edward M. White and A. G. Cavins, assistant attorneys general. Governor Hanly and Attorney General Bingham were in conference today, but it is not known that the conversation related to the French Lick case. It was believed around the state house, however, that some action would be taken to stop the gambling.

Rumors of a widespread movement to induce "liberal" Republicans to refuse to vote for James E. Watson, nominee for governor, are reported to have reached the party leaders who are conducting the Republican campaign. From several sources it is said they have information leading to the belief that the plan of the special opponents of the county option law is to bring about the defeat of Watson for the purpose of rebuking the party for enacting that law. The Republican campaign managers say that this plan is being resorted to as a protest against the action of the legislature, and they admit the possibility of the loss of many votes on account of it. However, Secretary Riddick declared today that the reports that are now being received from nearly every part of the state show that the Republicans are in better shape than they were before the local option bill went through.

It is said that efforts are being made to coerce working men to vote the Republican ticket. Circular letters were sent to the employees of the Nodyke & Marmon company, the Udell Woodware works and other large industries, urging them to vote the Republican ticket. The panic of 1893 was mentioned as a warning to laborers to stick with the Republican party and to support its policies. The circular also contained a warning against the revision of the tariff by the Democrats. The Workingmen's Protective association, an unknown organization, signed the circulars. W. C. Marmon, Arthur Cobb and others connected with the plants where the circulars were distributed, said they had nothing to do with them. Secretary Riddick of the Republican state committee and Chairman Ruckelshaus of the Republican county committee said that they knew nothing about the circulars.

Superintendent Schumacher of the Anti-Saloon League declares that his organization will not quit the fight just because of the enactment of the local option law. The league is announcing no plans, and it is the understanding that it will ask nothing from the next legislature except that there shall be no tampering with the present temperance laws. The reports Superintendent Schumacher is receiving lead him to the belief, he said, that the temperance element of both parties is still on the alert and that it will not "lay down" because of the enactment of the local option law.

Representative D. C. Johnson of Vermillion and Vigo counties, who announced that he would withdraw from the Republican ticket because he voted for county local option, has now announced that he will continue in the race. He said that Governor Hanly had signed his bill changing the mining laws to permit the miners to use larger bits for shot firing. This bill was demanded by the miners, and as Johnson represents a district in which there are over 4,000 miners, he believes he can be re-elected.

DESOLATION AT HYDERABAD

Funeral Pyres Are Burning There Night and Day.

Bombay, Oct. 3.—The correspondent of a local newspaper who has reached Hyderabad, the capital of the flooded district, described that city as a vast grave. The streets and bazars have been transformed into a grewsome mass of stone, mud and bodies. It is impossible accurately to estimate the death toll in the stricken region, the correspondent declares, but some natives put it as high as 50,000. Six hundred corpses were taken out of the mud at one spot yesterday. The funeral pyres are burning day and night. The damage is estimated at 200,000,000 rupees.

The population of Canada is now about 6,500,000.

New York Fashion Letter

BY CATHERINE MANN-PAYZANT.

The woman who travels at all—and this has become a nation of travelers—must have one dress that she may don at certain times. For the long journey, or the week-end visit, or a shopping tour into the city, there must be one always in order for the occasion and no style is accounted of such good form as the coat and skirt costume. True, when the coat is removed, many a skirt partakes with its half bodice of the nature of a full gown and this is well if one must visit a hotel or take a restaurant dinner while in town, or for a day only with some friend.

There is quite a noticeable difference between the traveling or street frock and the afternoon costume, the point being the shape and fullness of the skirt, while the jacket shows this contrast by trimming rather than by cut or style.

One note in the cut of jackets is the increase of length. Short jackets are entirely passe and though a few long-tailed Etons have been shown among the new costumes, popular favor is set strongly towards the long coat lengths. A few may come to the hips or a little below that point but the long line must be preserved.

The new skirts, although veering more and more to the plain gored or circular models, are yet seen with plaits. The difference lies in their arrangement. They are simulated with as little material as possible until at the knees more material is used for the flare, for the walking skirt has still a decided flare about the feet, although so close in fit about the hips. The great essential is to gain slenderness and perpendicular lines. Stitched bands of silk or the material itself are seen on many skirts, but again the wholly plain skirt is just as fashionable.

Sleeves are long, and elbow sleeves are not known in the real imported coat. Directoire modes in jackets have established the vogue of buttons, which are not of the utility grade at all, but decidedly ornamental and of different sizes. Braiding still remains with us more or less in amounts according to the use of the costume. Vests are also shown in both plain and elaborate styles.

While many empire coats are worn, the long-semi-fitting, half cutaway, or the Directoire coats are best suited to ordinary wear. The woman of plain taste will choose the former, especially for business wear; but the Directoire, severe, military, with its long lines in the back, which add to height, with its open front and vest and lapels, are decidedly smart and most generally becoming, and may be very dressy without being over elaborate. They are so constructed that they may be worn double-breasted, but more often the lapels are left open over a vest of plain cloth of a lighter tone, or a broadened silk, the latter material being more in keeping with the Directoire idea. Frogs and tassels are used to accentuate the military effect. The sleeves are long and close-fitting and flaring cuffs are often used. The lapels should be of silk or velvet and ornamented with large handsome buttons one on each point. Then to carry out the idea to exactness a full jabot of lace, or net, should be fastened at the throat—and indeed, a good deal of care should be given to the neckware with all these severely plain coats, for here the eternal feminine is shown to greatest advantage. Also, a frill of lawn, or lace, or net falls below the cuffs of the sleeve. There should be several sets of these frills and jabots for nothing will make the coat look old and out of style quicker than a soiled or worn neckpiece.

And the vest—one would suppose the last word had been spoken. Not so—the vest to the Directoire model is now made separate from the coat so it may be worn or not according to fancy, or interchangeable with another coat. In many cases this vest is of light colored cloth or flannel, a better choice is brocade, as I have already said, it is more in keeping with the idea. But I should advise buying one of the beautiful imported ones as the workmanship is so far in advance of anything the ordinary modiste can give us, and it may be worn with other coats. It would be better to put a little less on the coat (perhaps cut to open at the waist and cut,) that the vest may be very beautiful, for by its agency comes the distinctive touch of style.

The buttons must also be chosen with some care according to the material and texture. Sometimes they are embroidered, often they are covered with brocade, but those of silver or rhinestone or gold are considered the most appropriate.

Many of the new serges are of plain color with a slight line of black or white running through it. In the homespuns the plain ground is almost never broken. Colors in the homespuns are at present light in tone, but a medium shade would be a better choice if the dress must be worn all winter.

The figured and striped designs seem to predominate in short-skirted costumes. The pongees and rajahs now come in two-toned mixtures. In the cashmeres and voiles the two-tone effects are acquired by a difference of the weave of the material, such as silk thread or satin line, a herringbone or chevron stripe, yet the color is solid.

The broadcloths are beautiful in texture and coloring and many women adhere to these fabrics with a tenacity born of a knowledge of its dressy qualities and serviceability. A broad cloth has the dressyness of a silk or velvet, but can be appropriately put to more use.

On summery days during the fall the white suit will still be worn, but it will be of homespun or serge and the trimmings will be braiding, perhaps in black or red or mauve; and if one has an old suit of mohair or of other woolen goods, I should advise seeing that it is at once made ready for those warm days that visit us even in October. White wool dresses will be immensely popular during the winter for house wear.

There is a revival of ribbon work today, but its daintiness is not to be compared with the clumsiness of the fashion once in vogue. While it is used on many kinds of fancy work, women are more given to working at delegate lingerie, and the dainty sprays are thrown over house robes, or the net yoke of a nightgown. The flounce of the petticoat may have insets of lace done in this new work, and corset covers and gimpes offer the greatest temptation for all sorts of designs.

The patterns all call for small flowers, for which satin baby ribbon is used and the leaves and buds are formed with tiny loops while the stems and tendrils are often done in embroidery silk in the usual way.

The woman of full figure if often puzzled to know how to construct a new dressy waist, for many of the designs with tucks and folds make one look like a balloon. A new model of the kimono order may be a change. It is cut with the sleeves and waist in one of green cashmere or other becoming color. The sleeves are not to full under the arms and the under-arm seams leave no unnecessary fullness about the waist or shoulders. Instead of tucks or gathers the effect of long lines is gained by stitched bands running from the waist to shoulder, those of the back overlapping those of the front in little points and a fancy button. The front opens in a V that extends to the waist in a sharp point and is filled in with tucked chiffon covered with little sprays of embroidery.

PECULIAR ACCIDENTS.

The "Irony of Life" illustrated in Stories of Falls.

The "irony of life" was strikingly illustrated recently in the news of a rustic who slipped from a six barred gate and broke his neck and of an Italian aeronaut who fell 1,000 feet with his collapsed balloon with no worse result than a sprained ankle.

A Frenchwoman, Mme. Morel, and her daughter, while climbing in the Alps, near Zermatt, fell a distance of 1,200 feet, not much less than a quarter of a mile, and, although the mother was killed on the spot, her daughter escaped with a few bruises. Mr. Whymer, the famous mountaineer, had a similarly miraculous deliverance from what seemed to be certain death when scaling the Matterhorn. Losing his footing, he fell from rock to rock to the bottom of a precipitous gully, 100 yards in depth, only to recover his feet with no worse damage than a badly cut head. And M. Parville, a French writer, tells the story of an English Indian living in the island of Oghla who fell over a precipice 1,000 feet deep with no more serious consequence than a good shaking, his fall being broken by the dense vegetation which grew at the foot of the cliff.

While climbing a waterworks tower 240 feet high in Chicago a stepladder dislodged a loose stone and was precipitated to the ground from a height of 175 feet, fortunately striking telegraph wires forty feet above the street and thus breaking his fall. The spectators gasped with horror as they saw the man drop swiftly to destruction. A rush was made to pick up his shattered remains only to discover that he was practically unharmful. Not a bone was broken, and a week later he was walking about as if nothing had happened.

More remarkable and indeed almost incredible was the experience of Charles Woolcot when he was making a parachute descent in Venezuela. At a height of 3,000 feet Woolcot flung himself off his balloon into space, when, to the horror of the thousands of onlookers, the parachute failed to open. The man dropped like a stone with terrible speed until, when about 200 feet from the earth, the parachute flew open and at once collapsed. He was dashed to the ground, his right thigh and hip were broken, both ankles and knees were badly crushed, and his spinal column was dislocated, and yet, after a year spent in hospital, Woolcot was restored to soundness of limb after surely the most terrible adventure of which any man has lived to tell the story.

But it is in the history of ballooning that one encounters the most remarkable cases of sensational drops from the clouds. When Mr. Wise, a famous aeronaut of the early nineteenth century, was once making an ascent his balloon exploded at an altitude of 13,000 feet and began to drop swiftly to the earth, more than a couple of miles below. "The descent at first was rapid," Mr. Wise writes, "and accompanied by a fearful moaning noise caused by air rushing through the network and the gas escaping from above. In another moment I felt a slight shock, and, looking up to see what caused it, I discovered that the balloon was cutting over, being nicely doubled in, the lower half into the upper."

The balloon had, in fact, formed itself into a parachute and, oscillating wildly, continued its descent until it struck the earth violently, throwing the aeronaut ten yards out of the car. "The car had turned bottom upward, and there I stood," says Mr. Wise, "congratulating myself and the perspiration rolling down my forehead in profusion."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Ex-Slave For Taft.

An ex-slave living in Philadelphia has sent to the Philadelphia Ledger the following letter:

To the Editor of Public Ledger: I have read many of the different views as to whether it would better the condition of the working people for the colored people to vote for Bryan for president, a vast number of the colored race belonging to that class.

My belief is that it would be political suicide for any colored person to vote the Democratic ticket, as Democrats have been the enemy of my people ever since slavery days, and today in the solid south it is almost impossible for a colored person to go near the polls, not saying anything of voting.

Bryan's election would give the Democratic party power to entirely disfranchise the colored voters.

HOWARD ANDERSON, "Ex-Slave."

Philadelphia, Sept. 10.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as a savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with overwork. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood-making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in stomach, gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, or "sour risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret medicine of known composition.

MACARONI IN ITALY.

To the Working People This Food Is a luxury.

Every one pictures the Italian as eating macaroni. What if I tell you that the Italians, taking them as a people, do not eat macaroni, and yet this is virtually true. Macaroni in Italy costs 4 to 8 cents a pound, and it is too costly for common use. It is about as accurate to say that the Italians live on macaroni as that the Americans live on turkey. Macaroni to the working Italian is a luxury. You often see young fellows on a holiday indulging in a dish in a restaurant or before a street cook stand about as Americans would eat ice cream. A customary workman's dinner is a hunk of bread broken apart and "battered" with a few traces of tomato sauce. As for meat, it is the greatest rarity, and the only drink they can afford is water, which has the advantage of being cheap and filling. The Italians at home are not only temperate, but abstemious. Wine and beer and even tea, coffee and chocolate are forbidden to them on account of the expense. In all Italy we saw no one under the influence of liquor. So also there is practically no smoking. The government has a monopoly of the tobacco business, buys its supplies in quantities direct in America and elsewhere and charges three prices for everything. The few tobacco shops keep a piece of smoldering tow tied at the doorpost, so that patrons and passers may light their cigars by it.—Los Angeles Times.

WOMAN'S WIT UNCERTAIN.

As When This Wife Failed to Appreciate Hubby's Pleasantry.

"Don't always rely upon the ready wit of a woman," said the man who is sometimes pleased to consider himself an oracle. "That ready wit business is sometimes prone to get way off. For example, my wife and children had been staying in the country for several weeks, and I was regular with my letters, as every loving husband should be. Finally on the day before my wife was to start for home I concluded my letter to her with these words:

"This will be the last letter I will write to you for a long, long time."

"When I got down to my office the next morning I found a telegram from my wife waiting for me. 'What on earth do you mean?' read the dispatch. 'Later a registered letter came from her. She had blotted almost every line with tears. What it was all about I could not imagine.

"Then my telephone bell rang, and when I answered I heard my wife's voice speaking over the long distance phone.

"Oh, John!" said she. 'Is that really you? I thought you had committed suicide!'"—Washington Post.

THIS MATTER OF SMOKE.

We are sure that our view of the cigar business is unusual. Most druggists and all cigar dealers sell cigars to make money. We sell them to make friends—and money too in the long run. We want to get smokers into the store and let them judge what kind of a business we conduct by the kind of a cigar they get. In cigars as in drugs we get the best that money can buy.

There would be fewer failures in marriages if married people would keep in mind that they married for worse as well as for better.

Hearst is really running for president in 1912, and is merely taking an early start to get ahead of Bryan. But Bryan, the perpetual candidate, has announced that he would be in the hands of his friends until 1928.

The discovery that the Standard Oil pipe line had a connection with the Democratic national campaign fund is calculated to make the American people thoughtful in the subject of subterranean politics.

For the next four weeks William Howard Taft, William Randolph Hearst and William Jennings Bryan will take up a lot of the people's time and attention. A sure bet is that William will be elected.

It is an old saying that the man who pelts every barking dog picks up a great many stones. Which, being interpreted, means that it is worse than a waste of time and thought to pay attention to every idle gossip, slanderous talk or political abuse.

In any one of the last eighteen years it never cost so much to live as it did in the twelve months of 1901. Perhaps 1907 was the most expensive year for living that this country has ever experienced. But this cannot be proven by figures, for it is only since 1890 that the government has been keeping what may be called an accurate record of wholesale prices of staple commodities.

If republics, like monarchies were grateful there would be monuments galore for Herr Schwartz, of Germany, who has just died. He was the inventor of the picture postal card, and thus helped many governments to increase their postal revenues. The making of the cards is an industry engaging in this country and every country of the world the services of thousands of photographers, paper makers, printers and jobbers. As the kodak made it possible for every admirer of a pretty spot to have it in pictured form, the postal card made it possible at the outlay of a few cents to send the view broadcast. Views of cities, towns, public squares, monuments, public and private dwellings, river scenes, mountains, all of these found reproduction on the postal. Pen and ink, crayon or pencil, supplied other creations until hundreds of millions of cards with different views were printed. Sales of the cards annually run into the billions.

An unqualified approval of William H. Taft as a presidential candidate was given by Rev. James Coote, D.D., pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Thompsonville, Conn., when he called at the headquarters of the Republican National Committee. For years Dr. Coote has taken a prominent part in Methodist circles in New England and in New York, having been a presiding elder and occupied leading pulpits.

"No man has spoken so earnestly in favor of great work that Christian missions are doing in the Philippines, in China and in the orient generally as Mr. Taft," said Dr. Coote. "In an address at Yale University he emphasized that idea particularly, and on several occasions he spoke enthusiastically of the good being done by aggressive Christian evangelism in the different countries which he visited. It seems to me that no evangelical Christian should hesitate to support Judge Taft. He is just as big and broad in his religious ideas as he is in his physical proportions. He can be trusted to do what is fair and right with all denominations."

CURRENT COMMENT

Noises and Nerves.

Anti-noise crusaders have at last forced the authorities to admit that people have nerves. A few doctors and likewise a few strenuous laymen have long combated the idea of nerves. "Proud to say that I have no nerves," was the remark often made by persons blessed with a thick cuticle and blunted sensibilities. Nerves will adapt themselves to conditions. City trained nerves are as much upset by the absence of noise in the country as country trained nerves are jarred by the ceaseless clamor of the city.

The old time hum of the town and the city was, after all, not very distracting to the nerve of the normal person. It simply suggested life and activity. "The world's low hum" is the poet's definition of that pulsating of all nature which tones up the nerve of the average man. Somehow it is possible for all mankind to get in touch with that all pervading energy that makes the world go round and feel at home. But the ear splitting, nerve pounding sounds which have invaded life on all sides are always shocks and never tonics for the nervous system. We may blink them and imagine we show nerve, not complaining, but the truth is that the whole frame rises in revolt and protest, wanting to get away from the bedlam. When we cannot get away we work up a sympathetic sensation and hurry and bustle so that the nerves will not react. This helps for a time, but in the end the system suffers and pays for its stoical indifference. Nervous breakdowns often come to victims who seem to be noise hardened. They simply have the noise habit, and it is a disease which must run to a crisis. It is well that authority has at last joined hands with science to make useless and harmful noises unfashionable and that the public is insisting upon its right to "fair and reasonable" quiet.

The Kind of Aliens Wanted Here.

There is little doubt that the majority of immigrants who have settled in this country since the war days have materially bettered their condition. Their prosperity has added to the general prosperity. Success has given them an interest in their new home, and they have tried to be worthy of their good fortune. We can have no quarrel with such newcomers at any time, and there cannot be too many of that sort. But, as President Roosevelt said recently in his speech to the navy, "it is our undoubted right to say what people, what persons, shall come to this country to live, to work, to become citizens." The becoming citizens is the most important of all, and it is on this point that immigrants often make a mistake.

At present it is best perhaps that no aliens are wanted here who do not intend to become citizens. There is no scarcity of labor and no need of adding to the number of workmen. Distribution will even up things and get workers for every job, a job for every worker. Aliens seem to have taken the hint, and as many are going home as are coming here. The kind who find that they are misfits are going back. They will serve as a warning to the wrong kind to keep away from America. We have plenty of natives here who are not the kind to "go west." The old world has millions of that kind. Let them stay at home. Let those come who know what they will be up against here, who have means of self support and capital for the time of need, who can contribute to the prosperity they want a share in and will leave the prosperity they do create as an asset of the community that welcomes them. Our opportunities cost too much to become the football for every adventurer.

In July a year ago the board of visitors to West Point reported hazing as a thing of the past. What must have been their surprise and what the chagrin of the authorities in charge of the academy when, despite such efforts of concealment as put the sealed lips of the negro soldiers of Brownsville in the shade, it was shown that the worst abuses imaginable are still inflicted upon the long suffering freshmen by upper class cadets.

RECEPTION IN HONOR OF DR. TEVIS

Father of Dr. V. W. Tevis to be the Guest of Honor at Indianapolis Church Tonight.

IN THE MINISTRY 57 YEARS

The following from the Indianapolis Star concerns Dr. J. S. Tevis, father of Dr. V. W. Tevis of this city:

Dr. John S. Tevis, 118 West Eighteenth street, one of the oldest ministers in the General Methodist Episcopal Conference, will be honored on his eightieth birthday, this evening, with a reception in the parlors of Hall Place M. E. church, Sixteenth street and Hall Place.

Dr. Tevis, who was given his degree by DePauw University, has been in the ministry fifty-seven years, entering when 23 years old in the conference of 1851, held in Indianapolis. For years he was a circuit rider and then for some time was pastor of Fletcher Place church. Sixteen years ago he was placed on the superannuated list, but until only recently has filled many pulpits of the city during the regular occupants' temporary absence.

EVERYBODY HAD A HAND IN IT

Carthage Had Politics and Religion Mixed With Lots of Noise Thrown In.

STRENUOUS DIDINGS THERE

Carthage Citizen: More was doing in Carthage Wednesday night than on any ordinary night for some time. Douglas Morris, of Rushville, came up to coach the local Democrats; twelve representatives of the Salvation Army of Rushville conducted services on the public square; the Republicans had a business meeting, and the Republican drum corps was busy making noise. The campaign is on and will be hotly contested in this township.

TO CONCENTRATE AGAINST WATSON

Brewery Bosses Want to Retaliate for the Local County Option Law Activity.

COUNT ON DISINTERESTEDNESS

Think the Temperance Element Will Lay Down and Not Help Keep Law on Sataute Books.

Indianapolis, Oct. 3.—(Special) Unable to overcome the forces that were demanding the enactment of the county local option law, the brewery combine has set about to defeat James E. Watson, the Republican nominee for governor.

It was learned here today on reliable authority that their plan is to concentrate their efforts against Watson and let the rest of the Republican State ticket alone. By doing so they believe that they can induce enough Republicans who were not for county local option to vote against Watson and accomplish his downfall.

The fact that Mr. Watson has led his party's fight for county local option is the reason for this plan of the brewery bosses. The latter know that it will be impossible for them to bring about the repeal of the county local option law unless they can carry the State by an overwhelming majority for the Democrats. However, they want to retaliate on the Republican party by defeating its candidate for governor. They are appealing to liberal Republicans on the ground that their party will not be hurt if Watson is defeated and Marshall elected, as the senate is almost sure to be Republican and Marshall could do nothing with it against him.

The plan is an adroit one and is being pushed by every member of the brewery alliance. The latter has its agents at work here and the word is being sent to every large city to the brewery forces to get busy.

While the brewery bosses are saying that they know that they will not be able to repeal the county local option bill, and they merely want to defeat Watson in order to get even, it is known that they have hopes of being able to amend the temperance laws if they can succeed in electing Marshall governor. Marshall, up to this time, has refused to say whether or not he would sign a bill to repeal the county local option law, and as long as he remains in that attitude the brewery alliance feels that it is safe to support him. It is known that the brewers are desperate and that they do not propose to let the county option law become effective if they can help it. They expect to do their most effective work in the cities like Indianapolis, Terre Haute, Fort Wayne, Evansville and South Bend, where there are hundreds of saloons. In Indianapolis, the fight is not only against Watson, but against the Republican candidates for the legislature. Twelve members will be elected here and if the brewers can name them they will be in a good position to handle matters during the next session providing they are able to say who shall fill the governor's chair.

While they say now that they merely want to defeat Watson in order to get even, it was learned from inside sources that they are looking ahead to the session of the legislature in 1911, when if they have a man in the governor's office who is friendly to them, they feel they will be in the position to make a fierce fight to either repeal the county local option law or change it so it will not have any effect.

Brewers are counting on the temperance forces losing interest in the campaign because of the enactment of the county local option law, and because of the feeling of security the temperance people have in knowing that the Republicans will have control of the senate next winter. By taking advantage of the inactivity of the temperance people and urging the liberal element to still greater effort, the brewers are hoping they will be able to defeat Watson, elect Marshall and put themselves in good shape to repeal the county local option law two years from now.

HE PLAYS JEKYLL AND HYDE STUNT

Shelbyville Lad Leads Truant Officer a Merry Clip by Changing His Name.

DID NOT LIKE SCHOOL MATES

Lad Went Into Another Ward and Registered Under an Assumed Name.

John Hogue, county truant officer, is telling an interesting experience he had with a truant in the Shelbyville schools, says the Shelbyville News. Dislike for the school and teachers led this precious lad to take the matter in his own hands and transfer to another building in the city. In doing so he changed his name and while the truant officer searched the city for him, he, for one week, reposed in safety behind the new cognomen.

A lad name Griffin, a truant often requiring the attention of Mr. Hogue, started to school in building number five. He formed a dislike for the pupils and left the school. The next Monday morning he enrolled at school building number one but in the meantime his future name should be McClellan.

Mr. Hogue was told of Griffin's truancy proclivities and started on a still hunt. He searched the oft-trodden byways and paths without success. Visiting the lad's home he was informed Griffin was attending school regularly at building number one. Mr. Hogue hastened to that edifice and sought the principal. Stepping into the room he spied Griffin and told the principal to call him to the lobby. "But that boy's name is not Griffin," declared the professor. "It is McClellan."

The lad was called and greeted Mr. Hogue with a friendly, "Hi, Mr. Hogue, you know me, don't you?"

"You bet I do, Griffin," and the explanation that followed revealed the strange school boy "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" characterization.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

DOG KNEW THE GAME.

Laurel Review.)

In the seventh inning of the game Laurel went to bat and hit Kuhn over the field at will until three men were on bases. One of the visitors walked up and made a good drive over the head of third baseman Jerroll, and brought in two Laurels. This made the score three to two for the Tigers. Another visitor walked up and hit the ball between third base and the plate. Kuhn ran to catch it but before he reached the spot he had a collision with a large dog and missed it. During the melee the ball had rolled outside the foul line and another man scored making a tie. The umpire declared a safe hit, but Kuhn said it was a foul. The umpire's word was law, but Kuhn went and sat down on the plate and held it there for about five minutes. Finally the umpire awarded the game to the visitors and ended the affair. The dog got a "safe hit" in the side.

RELIEF MONEY IS RETURNED

Local Knights of Columbus Receive Part of Money Sent to San Francisco.

WAS PART OF RELIEF FUND

The local order of K. of C. today, received a check from San Francisco for $17.40. At the time of the earthquake all the various branches of the order were asked to contribute such means as they could toward the relief of the members who were in distress because of the earthquake and the fire. All the orders gave liberally, the local branch sending $20. The committee into whose hands the fund was placed used it freely toward the relief of the needy, yet the donation had been so large that only a fraction of the fund was used. This explains the return of the check for $17.40, which represents the amount that was not needed. The circumstances speak well for the liberality of the local K. of C. and for the honor of their brethren on the Pacific border.

ANOTHER CHARGE AGAINST HUSBAND

Mrs. Mary Saunders Alleges That Her Husband Benjamin F. Saunders Deserted Her.

OTHER FOR DRAWING RAZOR

The case against Benjamin Saunders for drawing a razor on his wife, which was to have been tried today in Squire Kratzer's court, was continued until October 13. Mrs. Mary Saunders, who filed the affidavit, filed another charge against her husband this morning alleging him with desertion. It will be remembered that about two weeks ago Saunders went to the home of his father-in-law where his wife had been making her home and asked to see the child which had been born in his absence. It is said that he was refused admittance. Mrs. Saunders claims that he drew a razor on her, but the defendant asserts that he merely had a razor in his pocket.

Chapter 2

ONLY ten days have passed, but I feel as if they were a hundred. I have lived so much. I've heard people near me in deck chairs saying that it's been a "dull voyage," but what ever else it has been for me it hasn't been dull.

In the first place, I've never been on the sea before, except crossing the channel, which doesn't count, of course. And now that I've been thrown with so many people—all sorts of people—I realize how few I have known in my life so far. If I had about twice as many fingers and toes as I have I believe I might tick off every human being I've ever met as actual acquaintances outside my own relations.

I've lived always at dear, beautiful old Battlemead (it seems doubly beautiful as I think of it now from far away), and till last year most of my time was spent in the schoolroom, or walking, or pottering about in a pony carriage with one of the governesses I used to drive to distraction. When we had house parties I was kept out of the way, as mother said it spoiled young girls to be taken notice of and I should have my fun later. When the others went up to town for the season, as they often did, I was left behind, and though Battlemead is within twenty-five miles of London I suppose I have not been there more than two dozen times in my life. When I did go it was generally for a concert or a matinee, and, of course, I enjoyed it immensely, but I don't know that it taught me much about life. And the one time I was taken abroad we had nothing to do with any one we met at hotels. Being on this big ship seemed at first exactly like being at a play when I had been brought in late and found it difficult to know which were the leading actors, which the villains and villainesses and what the plot was about.

Now, though, I've been through so many experiences I feel as if I were in the play myself, not watching it from outside.

Everything was very nice, though very strange, to begin with.

Dear old Stan came out of his shell and actually traveled all the way to Southampton to see me off, which was good of him, especially as Vic explained that he and Sally Woodburn had been thrown at each other's heads in vain.

He'd bought me a great box of sweets, a bunch of roses and several magazines, and just as we were starting he slipped something small but fat into my hand.

Just as we were starting he slipped something small but fat into my hand.

"That's to help you keep your end up, kid, in case you're imposed on," said he. "You are only a kid, you know, but all the same don't let them treat you like one, and if you get the hump over there just cable me. I'll see you through and have you back again with your own sort, water or no water, hanged if I don't."

Stan never made me such a long speech before, and after we sailed and I got time to look at the fat thing he'd put in my hand I found it was a lot of gold pieces bundled up in two ten-pound notes. The gold made twelve sovereigns more, so Stan had given me altogether more than thirty pounds. All that money, with the twenty pounds mother had told me to use only "when strictly necessary," made me feel a regular millionaire. I've never had a sixth part as much before in my life.

Stan's kindness was just like a cup of something warm and comforting when you're tired and cold, so that I began to brighten up and feel happy.

I liked our suit, with two staterooms, a bath and a dear little white and blue drawing room about as big as the old doll's house I inherited from Vic. I was thankful to find I was to chum with Miss Woodburn, not Mrs. Ess Kay, for I never could have stood that. It was fun finding places to hang up our things when they were unpacked, and Mrs. Ess Kay's French maid Louise helped me get settled, paying me so many compliments on my hair and my eyes and my complexion that I grew quite confused, but perhaps that's a habit in which American ladies encourage their maids.

"But the marvel that is miladi's hair! It is of the color of gold and with a natural curl. It will be so great a joy if I may dress it. And her complexion! It is beyond that of any English demoiselle I have ever seen, yet all the world knows they are best on earth. With such eyes no doubt miladi can wear any color, and she has the figure for which the make of corsets is of no import."

If it had been in English I should have wanted to order her out of the room, but things like that don't sound so objectionable in French.

Miss Woodburn's and especially Mrs. Ess Kay's clothes looked so exquisite that I was mortified to have Louise unpack mine, though I have brought my smartest things, and Vic had two or three pretty blouses of hers altered in a great hurry, for me. Besides, mother said my outfit was quite good enough for a young girl in England and that I was not to let myself feel dissatisfied if in another country they chose to overdress.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and purge of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

F. B. JOHNSON & CO.

Anyhow I will say for Mrs. Ess Kay that she didn't appear to be ashamed of me at first. On the contrary, she had a way of seeming to show me off, almost as if she thought I did her credit.

When we had unpacked we three went to luncheon and took the first seats which were vacant. But presently Mrs. Ess Kay sent for the chief steward or some one important. "I am Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox," said she in a haughty voice, "and I have as my guest Lady Betty Bulkeley, daughter of the Duchess of Stanforth. You must give us three of the best seats at the captain's table."

I couldn't help hearing, and my ears did tingle, but Miss Woodburn only smiled and looked down, with a funny twinkle under her eyelashes, which curl up so much that it always seems as if she were just going to laugh.

I thought if I were the steward I would give us the worst seats on the ship to teach us not to be proud. But he didn't do anything of the sort. He was as meek as a lamb, so I'm sure he can't have any sense of humor. He said Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox might count on him, and she and her party should have places on the captain's right hand.

Mrs. Ess Kay was as bad with the deck steward. She found that he hadn't put our chairs (which she had brought on board herself) in the right place, and she had him called up and made a great fuss. The cards of a Rev. Somebody, his wife and daughters were on chairs in the position which she had made up her mind to have, exactly amidsnip and on the shady side.

"I must have my chairs changed and put here," she said. And then—oh, horror!—I'm certain I caught her repeating the formula she'd used at luncheon. "I am Mrs. Stuyvesant-Knox, and I have as my guest," etc. To be sure, she had walked off to a little distance with the deck steward where our chairs were, and I might have been mistaken, but two or three people who were standing near looked suddenly very hard at me, and I know I turned scarlet with annoyance, to be labeled in that way, as if I were a parcel marked "glass" and to be handled with care.

Afterward when I came to read the passenger list I found that there was nobody else on board with any sort of title, not even an honorable anybody; otherwise, of course, Mrs. Ess Kay's little maneuver, which I'm afraid must have been meant for snobishness, wouldn't have excited the slightest notice.

"Now," said Mrs. Ess Kay when we were settled in our places, "I know a good many people on the ship, but most of them are nobodies, and I do not intend to be troubled with them, nor do I think that the duchess would care to have me let Betty mix herself up with anybody and everybody. I shall do a great deal of weeding and select her acquaintances carefully."

"Betty," indeed! I'd never told her that she might call me Betty, and I hate having persons I don't care for take hold of my name without using a handle to touch it. It makes me feel as I did when I was a child and mother commanded me to let myself be kissed by unkind and extraneous grownups.

Thank goodness, Vic and I have come into the world with something of poor father's sense of humor. My share often serves me as well as balm on a wound or as a nice, dry, crackly little biscuit which you're enchanted to find when you're hungry and thought you had nothing to eat, and I got a good deal of quiet comfort out of it during Mrs. Ess Kay's "weeding" process, which otherwise would have done nothing but make me squirm.

When we had been on deck for a short time a number of people came up to speak to Mrs. Ess Kay and some to Miss Woodburn. The water was as smooth as the floor of a ballroom when it's been well waxed for a dance, and there was no excuse for the most sensitive person to be ill; consequently the deck was something like a kaleidoscope, with all its moving groups of men and women, girls and children. Most of the best looking and best dressed ones were Americans, and a great many seemed to know each other. Some of them laughed a good deal and talked in high voices, putting emphasis on prepositions, which Miss Mackinstry and the others would never let me do in writing compositions. Somehow, though, when these people spoke it sounded very nice and cordial, more so than it does when English people greet each other, though the voices weren't so sweet, except a few that drawled in a pretty southern way, like Sally Woodburn's.

CHURCH WELCOME TEST.

Pastor In Guise of Workman Cordially Greeted In All Churches but One.

To disprove the assertion of the Socialists that the churches only welcome the rich and scorn the workingman the Rev. John Thompson, pastor of the McCabe M. E. church in Chicago, spent his August vacation disguised as a workman and attending services at nine wealthy churches of Chicago.

In a threadbare and shiny blue serge coat, trousers that were worn at the edges, a cheap cotton shirt and tie, old shoes and a black felt hat the minister was so well disguised that even his friends might have passed him by. In fact, he sat in a street car beside one of the members of his own congregation and was not noticed.

"I made the experiment," he said the other day, "to find what, if any, truth there might be in the charge that the workman and the poorly dressed visitor are not made welcome in our churches. I found, as I had hoped, that it was just the other way.

"In the nine churches that I visited I found the congregation always attentive, and in eight of the churches the ministers were cordial. In the ninth, I must say, I was surprised to see how crusty the minister was, and I was practically repulsed when I spoke to him at the end of the service."

To Study the Stars For Five Years.

With Professor Lewis Boss and Robert Varnum of the Dudley observatory at Albany, Professor R. H. Tucker of the Lick observatory recently left San Francisco on a five year trip to South America to observe and catalogue the southern stars, numbering upward of 25,000, that are of merit in astronomical eyes. A temporary observatory will be built in the Argentine Republic. The expedition is undertaken under the direction of the Carnegie institution at Washington.

TRADE LOOKING UP

This Week's Distribution the Best for Months Past.
New York, Oct. 3.—Bradstreet's weekly review of trade today says: Cooler weather is the mainstay of the moderate improvement in retail and jobbing trade reported at most cities this week. Additionally helpful features have been the numerous fairs and festivals which have enlarged distribution locally at many points. While there are reports of holding of crops, notably at the South, where prices are much lower than a year ago, the crop movement is liberal as a whole. Reports from industries are rather better as a whole. Good reports come from the lumber trade South and West, and a good volume of building is going forward. Election uncertainties are reported affecting demand for iron and steel, but cool weather has helped the coal trade East and West. On the whole this week's distributive trade was probably the best that has been enjoyed for months past, and while the impending election is a deterrent factor, there seems to be a general tendency in most lines to take hold, on the theory that future trade is likely to show lasting and substantial gains.

Double Tragedy in Illinois.

THE DOCTORS NOT AGREED

Differences of Opinion In Tuberculosis Congress.

ON AN IMPORTANT QUESTION

The Relation Between Human and Bovine Tuberculosis and the Transmission of the Latter to Human Beings Engrosses the Most Thoughtful Deliberation of International Congress, Revealing a Difference of Opinion That Shows the Scientists Are Badly Divided on That Point.

Washington, Oct. 3.—A conference of the active workers in the bacteriology of tuberculosis was held behind closed doors for the exchange of views in regard to the important question concerning the relation of human and bovine tuberculosis and the transmission of the latter to human beings. This conference was not a part of the international tuberculosis congress program, but was a private consultation among those whose utterances on this subject are generally regarded as authoritative. The conference was not expected to yield and did not yield any positive statement. Its effect was to organize a sort of informal commission of international scope to settle as soon as the progress of science permits, the relation of bovine tuberculosis to the tuberculosis of man.

Dr. Herman M. Biggs of New York presided. Two questions propounded by Prof. Koch were discussed. There was general agreement that bovine tuberculosis may be transmitted to human beings, especially children, in whom the disease takes the form of either intestinal tuberculosis or tuberculosis of the cervical or mesenteric lymph glands. The only essential difference of opinion was found to exist among the various workers related to the relative frequency with which this occurs. Prof. Koch maintained that it seldom happened, while other observers argued from their own observations that it was not infrequent. The subject was finally referred for further investigation, in which Prof. Koch himself promised to take part during the next two or three years.

IS THIS A FEELER?

Mr. Longworth Proposes Roosevelt for Eight Years Hence.

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 3.—Theodore Roosevelt for president again eight years from now, was the declaration of the president's son-in-law, Congressman Nicholas Longworth, in a speech here on the grounds of the Tri-State Exposition to an audience of several thousand persons, who cheered the sentiment again and again. Mr. Longworth's statement was made during the course of a eulogy and defense of the president's administration. He first proposed that the Republican leader for the next eight years be William H. Taft, the nominee for president, who if elected, as the speaker declared he was confident he would be, should be returned to that office for a second term. Following Mr. Taft as president, seriously declared Mr. Longworth, Theodore Roosevelt should be returned to the chair for the next eight years.

Two Victims of Hotel Fire.
Boston, Oct. 3.—Crest Hall and the Oceanview hotel, two of the largest summer houses on the ocean boulevard at Winthrop, were burned early today, together with several cottages. The loss was estimated at $150,000. Two women who were guests at Crest Hall, Mrs. A. C. Dumont of Cincinnati, and a Miss Martin, are reported missing. All of the other guests at Crest Hall, numbering fifty, and the thirty-five guests at the Oceanview hotel, are accounted for.

Perry county, Ohio, by a majority of 1,027, voted to banish saloons, of which there are fifty-six within its boundaries.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton shows a total of 2,137,868, against 1,979,384 last week.

Nat C. Goodwin, the actor, has been granted an absolute divorce from his wife, Jessie Dermott Goodwin, known as Maxine Elliott.

Nineteen counties in Ohio have now held elections under the Rose law and all have gone dry, the total number of saloons affected being 482.

The final hearing of the suit of the federal government to dissolve the Standard Oil company will take place before the United States circuit court in St. Louis on Feb. 23.

Seasonable weather stimulated retail trade materially and the better distribution to consumers brought a larger movement in wholesale and jobbing departments, but in most leading industries there is still hesitation, says Dan's weekly review.

UPROAR OVER MURDER CASE

Remarkable Scene In Court When Italian Was Acquitted.

DEFENDANT KISSED JURYMEN

When the Twelve Before Whom Pasquale Trotta Was Tried on a Murder Charge at Marion Returned a Verdict of Acquittal, There Followed One of the Wildest Scenes Ever Witnessed at the Grant County Bar, and the Court Had Difficulty in Restoring Order.

Marion, Ind., Oct. 3.—When the jury before which Pasquale Trotta was tried on the charge of murder, returned a verdict of not guilty in the circuit court room, there followed one of the wildest scenes ever witnessed by the Grant county bar.

Thirty Italian laborers who had waited impatiently for the verdict, jumped to their feet, clapped their hands and shouted, as they clasped Trotta in their arms and kissed his cheeks. The aged mother of Trotta fainted and had to be carried from the courtroom. All efforts on the part of Sheriff McGuffin and his deputies to restore order failed.

Trotta, as soon as he could free himself from his family and friends, rushed to the jury box and kissed the hands of every juror. This demonstration occurred before the jury had been polled, and Judge Paulus had to appeal to Trotta's counsel to restrain their client, that the announcement of the verdict could be finished in regular form.

Pasquale Trotta shot and killed Erigo Quaranta at Fowler, this county, Aug. 28. The defendant made a strong case, all of the workmen testifying that he shot his antagonist in self defense.

HENDREN MURDER MYSTERY

Police and Detectives Report Themselves Unable to Make Headway.

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 3.—Although the detectives and police are working constantly on the Hendren murder case, they report that the mystery is becoming more dense. Charles Sims, of this city, who was arrested on the charge of intoxication, and who was held under suspicion, was released yesterday afternoon, when the police satisfied themselves that he was in no way connected with the tragedy. There is now no one in custody, and it is believed that the murderer has made good his escape. Officials were unable to get trace of him after he left the station, running west in Hill street, and some believe that the man is still in town. He was evidently familiar with the city and had his escape well planned.

River Navigation Stopped.

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 3.—The little steamer Lena May, that, since the boats of the Louisville & Evansville Packet company laid upon account of low water, has been making trips from this point down the river, gave up the struggle and laid up at the wharf here last night. The boat draws but eighteen inches of water, but it cannot get over the bars at this low water stage. With the exception of a few gasoline launches that make trips to points below here, navigation is completely suspended below the falls.

Politics Interrupts Trial.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 3.—When the case against Ray Lamphere, charged with murder in connection with the death of Mrs. Bella Guinness and Andrew Helgelein, was called in the circuit court, a continuance was taken until after the election. The prosecuting attorney and the attorneys for the defendant are too busy to take it up during the campaign. Lamphere is still in jail, Attorneys Darrow and Warden having abandoned their plan to attempt to obtain his release by habeas corpus proceedings.

Delph Held to Answer.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 3.—The Laporte county grand jury has returned an indictment against William James Delph, who on Aug. 23, killed his mother-in-law, charging murder in the first degree. He is under arrest. The mother-in-law, Mrs. Sarah Meacham, was trying to save her son, Edward Meacham, from the wrath of Delph when Delph turned the gun on her and shot her dead.

Miner Killed by Current.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 3.—While standing in a trench of mud and water in the Wabash mine, near West Terre Haute, James Swarbrake, a miner, accidentally struck an electric wire with a crowbar and was instantly killed. Swarbrake was working by the side of several other miners when the crowbar came into contact with one of the wires which furnishes the lights for the mine.

Woman's Shocking Death.

New Albany, Ind., Oct. 3.—Catching her foot in a frog on the Southern railroad track near Birdseye, Mrs. Elmer Spurlock, wife of a farmer, was held fast and killed by a freight train that came along a few minutes later.
